Dear [REDACTED]

Re: Access to Information Request No. [REDACTED]

Thank you for your letter of December 13, 2002, requesting the release of information, which was received in this office on January 2, 2003. You requested a summary of total fees (legal aid certificates) provided by Legal Aid Ontario for the two Court cases [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] since [REDACTED] to the present including all parties/entities.

I am unable to confirm or deny whether records exist which are responsive to your request. That is so because disclosure of that information, should it exist, would disclose the nature of the clients' retainer as being a legal aid retainer. I have concluded that The Legal Aid Services Act prohibits any disclosure in the circumstances of this request. Section 89 of the Legal Aid Services Act provides as follows:

89.(1) All legal communications between the Corporation, an officer or employee of the Corporation, an area director or member of an area committee and an applicant for legal aid services are privileged in the same manner and to the same extent as solicitor-client communications.

(2) All legal communications between a lawyer, student or service-provider at a clinic, student legal aid services society or other entity funded by the Corporation, or any other member, officer or employee of a clinic, student legal aid services society or other entity funded by the Corporation and an applicant for legal aid services are privileged in the same manner and to the same extent as solicitor-client communications.

(3) Disclosure of privileged information to the Corporation that is required under this Act does not negate or constitute waiver of privilege.

Section 90 provides as follows:

375 University Avenue, Suite 404,
Toronto, ON M5G 2G1
Bureau 404, 375, avenue University,
Toronto, ON M5G 2G1

90.(1) A member of the board of directors, an officer or employee of the Corporation, an area director, a member of an area committee, a lawyer, a service-provider or a member, officer, director or employee of a clinic, student legal aid services society or other entity funded by the Corporation shall not disclose or permit to be disclosed any information or material furnished to or received by him or her in the course of his or her duties or in the provision of legal aid services.

(2) A person referred to in subsection (1) may disclose information or allow it to be disclosed in the performance of his or her duties or in the provision of legal aid services or with the consent of the applicant or if authorized by the Corporation.

You requested information which would require us to confirm by inference whether the persons involved in the named Court cases were legally aided. As the Court numbers were provided by you, the names of the persons involved in the cases may be known, as the Court records are public records. Accordingly, the release of information about any costs paid by Legal Aid would necessarily identify the litigants as recipients of legal aid assistance.

These records are, in my view, subject to the provisions of ss. 89 and 90 of the Legal Aid Services Act. The information in the legal aid file, including the accounts of solicitors is subject to solicitor client privilege and, as such, is subject to Section 89 of the Act. I have reached this conclusion based on the general principles relating to solicitor client privilege (see Slavutych v. Baker, [1976] 1 S.C.R. 254).

Further, the Supreme Court of Canada has held, in Descoteaux v. Mierzwinski (1982), 70 C.C.C. (2d) 385, 28 C.R. (3d) 289 (S.C.C.), that all information, administrative or legal, contained in the form that an applicant for legal aid must fill out is provided for the purpose of obtaining legal advice and is given in confidence for that purpose and, consequently, is subject to the applicant's fundamental right to have such communications kept confidential pursuant to solicitor-client privilege. The fact that the information is provided to legal aid in confidence brings the information within Section 90 of the Legal Aid Services Act, 1998. The fact that the information is subject to solicitor-client privilege brings the information within Section 89. The law with respect to solicitor client privilege makes clear that the privilege is that of the client, not the solicitor, and the privilege continues notwithstanding that the solicitor client relationship has come to an end. In view of this conclusion, we would require the waiver of the legal aid applicant to the privilege before we are in a position to confirm the existence of files or release the contents of the legal aid files to you. Nor does it appear that it would be part of our duties to allow the release of this material (see s. 90 (2)).

Please be aware that it is the position of Legal Aid Ontario that ss.89 and 90 of the Legal Aid Services Act, by legislation, prevail over the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act: see s.103 of the Legal Aid Services Act and s. 67(2) of the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act.

I am responsible for the decision to deny you access to the records. You may ask for a review of this decision within 30 days of receiving this letter by writing to: The Information and Privacy Commission/Ontario, 80 Bloor Street West, Suite 1700, Toronto Ontario M5S 2V1, Telephone 1-800-387-0073.

If you decide to request a review of this decision, please provide the Commissioner's office with the following: the file number listed at the beginning of this letter; a copy of this decision letter; and a copy of the original request for information you sent to our institution.

In addition, you must send an appeal fee to the Commissioner's office. That appeal fee for information other than personal information is $25.00.

At this time, I am returning to you your cheque in the amount of $15.00 payable to Legal Aid Ontario. The request fee is $5.00. However, as a final decision has been made, we are prepared to waive the fee in this case.

Yours truly,

Ruth Lawson
